NOTE TO THE READER

Welcome to the updated Directory of Services for Children – a collection of resources to support the health and welfare of children all over Jamaica – which has been coordinated by our NGO partner, Fight for Peace. This new version reflects an innovative and participatory approach as it is a document created by young people to serve children and youth. It builds on UNICEF’s efforts to protect and fulfill the rights of every Jamaican child.

This directory provides a comprehensive listing of agencies serving children, parents and families in Jamaica. It includes both national organisations that operate across the country and local organisations that operate at the parish or regional level. It describes the services provided by each agency or organization and includes contact information. It also identifies specific services dedicated to the early childhood sector, children with disabilities and services focused on the prevention, mitigation and response of violence against children.

We recognise the contributions made by every entity included and thank them for their cooperation in enabling this updated version. We especially thank the inter-American Development Bank (IDB) for their partnership to complete the design of the directory, helping to expand its user-friendliness, the Child Protection and Family Services Agency (CPFSA) for their willingness to host the material and enable widespread, data free access and the Ministry of Education, Youth and information (MOEYI) for its endorsement.

We hope that everyone who cares about and works with children and their families – including parents/caregivers, service providers and practitioners – will find this directory to be a useful resource as we all work together to ensure that all our children have a fair and equitable chance in life.

Mariko Kagoshima
UNICEF Representative

Message from Minister of Education, Youth and information (MOEYI) Hon Fayval Williams for the UNICEF/Fight for Peace (FFP) Directory of Children Services Guide (Publication) March 2021

I am particularly pleased with this second edition of the Directory of Services for Children for our nation's youth. I extend high commendations to the United Nations Children Education Fund (UNICEF) and their NGO, Fight for Peace (FFP) for the creation of this well-needed document. The revision comes at a time when our nation is faced with attacks of violence and maltreatment against our children. It is my expectation that this social register will be a referenced resource for all Jamaicans.

Since 2018, this manual has served as a valuable resource for building knowledge, promoting effective practices, and enhancing community collaboration. Since the last update of this user guide, a number of changes have occurred that dramatically affect each community's response to child maltreatment. The changing landscape reflects increased recognition of the complexity of issues facing children and families, new legislation, practice innovations, and systems reform efforts. Significant advances in research have helped shape new directions for interventions, while ongoing evaluations help us to know "what works."

Child abuse and neglect is a complex problem, and child protection is a challenging responsibility. No single publication can provide all the information needed to promote effective child protection services practice, or explore all of the relevant issues, or reflect the multitude of policy and practice variations in place across the country. This manual, however, provides a starting point and a solid foundation for Jamaicans to utilize in times of need. This guide should be augmented through training, other professional development activities, and experience.

Each day, the safety and well-being of some children across the nation are threatened by child abuse and neglect. Intervening effectively in the lives of these children and their families is not the sole responsibility of any single agency or professional group, but rather is a shared community concern.

I commend UNICEF and the 'Fight for Peace' team and the various partners who have worked tirelessly to ensure that the information contained herein meets not only national standards, but is commensurate with international conventions dealing with the rights and safety of children.

Blessings to all!

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

Welcome to the third edition of the Directory of Services for Children and Families.

First published in 2005, this Directory aims to provide a comprehensive list of agencies serving children, parents, and families in Jamaica.

The Directory includes both national organisations that operate across the country and local organisations that operate at the parish or regional level. It covers nine types of organisations:

	Advocacy, Research and Educational Services
	Care and Protection
	Children with Disabilities and Exceptional Abilities
	Counselling and Psychological interventions
	Early Childhood
	Financial Assistance
	Health Services
	Recreation, Sports and Culture
	Skills Training and Career Development
	Violence Prevention/interventions
	Youth Organisations

The Directory is organised into three main sections:

1. The first index – Child Services index – lists all the Child Services organisations in alphabetical order.
2. The second index – index by Parish – lists all organisations that exist in each parish.
3. The third index – index by Type of Service – lists all the organisations by the type of service they offer. To find an organisation, you may flip through the three sections, or simply look it up in the indexes that begin on page 11.

We have included services provided by government, non-governmental organizations and international development partners. Across the island, there are many private individuals and organizations that provide enrichment activities for the health and well-being of families. These activities are not included in the directory, but can be accessed using online searches or by looking in the national telephone directories under the areas of interest, e.g. gymnastics, football, dance, cricket, music lessons.

in compiling this Directory, every effort was made to include the widest possible list of services and ensure the accuracy of the information.

Please report any missing or erroneous information to up@fightforpeace.net. If you would like an organisation to be included in future editions of the Directory, please send us your information using the Submission form located at the back of the Directory.

The information here can also be accessed electronically on the Child Protection and Family Services site at www.childprotection.gov.jm and on the UNICEF Jamaica website – www.unicefjamaica.org. We hope that you will use the Directory often. Please send us feedback at up@fightforpeace.net. *n/a – not available at the time of publication.

ABOUT THE TEAM

for the first time, the Directory of Services for Children and Families has been created for young people, by young people.

Members of the UP Unity & Peace programme researched and wrote the entries for the Directory, contacting nearly 250 organizations across the country that work with children and families.

The UP Unity & Peace programme is a youth development programme in Kingston, Jamaica coordinated by Fight for Peace. Fight for Peace is a global NGO focused on promoting peace and inclusivity through sport and holistic youth programmes. UP Unity & Peace brings together more than 40 local partners to provide activities in sport, education, employability, youth leadership and psychosocial support, offering programmes in primary and secondary schools and at community centres in Parade Gardens, Fletchers Land, Hannah Town, Denham Town, Trench Town and Tivoli Gardens.

The Directory research team includes 11 young people: eight young men and three young women, aged 16–22. They are athletes who play football or practice boxing and taekwondo within the UP programme as well as members of the Fighting Words book club, where they read books and work on their creative writing. Many of them are members of the UP Unity & Peace Youth Council, which advises Fight for Peace and the UP partners on programme design and implementation. They were led by Danielle Grant, a social worker with Fight for Peace.

The Directory of Services for Children and Families is the first major project conducted by young people in the UP Unity & Peace programme with guidance from UNICEF, and they are proud to share it with you. To share feedback and to find out more about UP Unity & Peace, email up@fightforpeace.net.
